HAIKU

Eyes, you have seen all
Come back now, come back to the White Chrysanthemum!

Issho

Wandering, dreaming
In fever ... dreaming that dreams
Forever wander

Basho

Cool green grass ...
One dream all heroes
Find to be true
On forgotten tombs

Basho

Because spring has come
This small gray nameless mountain
Is honored by mist

Basho

Old man with one ear
Held close, Do I sound to you
Like a buzzing gnat?

Issa

The leaves never know
Which leaf will be first to fall
Does the wind know?

Soseki

A crow clings silent
To a bare bough, Cautiously
Catching the sunset

Basho

If things were better for me
for me, flies, I'd invite you
To share my supper.

Issa

Scarecrows are the first
Heroes to fall in the rush
Of the autumn wind

Kyoroku

Small bird forgive me
I'll hear the end of your song
In some other world

Anon.

Cuckoo, if you must Cry to the moon, Not to me
I've heard your story

Soseki

Broken and broken
Again on the sea, the moon
So easily mends

Chosu

Two Versions of the Same Haiku:

A river leaping
Tumbling over rocks, roars on ...
As the mountain smiles

The river, leaping
Rocks, angrily roars away ...
As the mountain smiles
